Workshop Content

“Expanding the Dynamosphere” provides rich movement experiences and new perspectives on Rudolf Laban’s effort theories. Course material is relevant for dancers, choreographers, actors, directors, dance therapists, and all those interested in the psychology of movement.

The dynamics of human movement are explored through structured improvisation, choreographic and theatrical experiences, and theoretical discussion. Laban’s notions of human effort—motion factors, states, and drives – provide core material. In addition, little known models of effort patterning discovered by Dr. Moore in the Laban Archive are presented to provide fresh material for movement explorations and discussions. This is a continuing education workshop suitable for Certified Movement Analysts as well as anyone with a basic knowledge of Laban Movement Analysis.

Workshop Instructors
